

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

(2007)

Dear Friends / Family,

It's that time of year again! What a wonderful year it has been for all of us. The whole family has had a great year, full of memories and adventure. Where should we begin to recount how very blessed we have been? We have never done a Christmas letter before, but fortunately there are letter-writing tools available for people like us.

To start off, _____ has been very involved in:

- ___ the mafia as a money launderer
- ___ restoring peace to Iraq
- ___ starting a homeless shelter for abandoned and battered cats
- ___ playing extreme Scrabble
- ___ empathizing with the warming globe
- ___ scratch and sniff lottery, but not for the money

Meanwhile, in _____, _____ has been pursuing:

- ___ world conquest
- ___ perfecting sleek and discreet flossing technique
- ___ an enriching career in hydrotherapy
- ___ rehabilitation of glue-sniffing ants
- ___ moderate success in minimal endeavors occasionally
- ___ study at the Palestinian glass-blowing institute

And last, but certainly not least, _____ has enjoyed living in _____ while succeeding in:

- ___ teaching mute people how to walk
- ___ further developing fungus taxonomy
- ___ acquiring a wide variety of superpowers including, but not limited to:
 - ___ infrared vision
 - ___ super strength
 - ___ the ability to melt
 - ___ an uncanny ability to talk to fish, although they don't usually talk back
- ___ continued development of Opti-Grab™ technology
- ___ being macho
- ___ selling glue to ants

In short, we could not have possibly asked for a better year. Some people wish for a perfect life; we lived it, and we are so blessed. We could go on, but we are sure your lives are so much fuller than ours—and so busy too. We only wish that we could have shared each special moment with every one of you.

Sincerely / Love / Affectionately / Yours,
